

Response date: 22 November 2023

You asked Money and Pensions Service the following

“Self employed pension review appointments are mentioned on your website.

Please could you state how many people have booked and attended a Self-employed Pension Review appointment to date, and when did MaPS/MoneyHelper begin making these appointments available? If possible, please state the average age of individuals booking these appointments and the percentage who are male and the percentage female.”

Money and Pensions Service Response

In 2017, self-employed pension review appointments were introduced. Since then, we have steadily offered several appointments for self-employed people who want to think through pension saving, particularly at the point that they are thinking of winding down their business or making wider changes in their lives.

Currently, we do not routinely capture detailed data on gender and age.
